

6555

SARONI DRIVE, OAKLAND

Dear Future Homeowners,

We knew this was home the moment we walked in. Before moving in, we thoughtfully remodeled it to create a space filled with warmth, light, and togetherness, and it became exactly that.

This is where we welcomed both of our daughters, where they took their first steps, learned to climb stairs, and filled every corner with laughter. The backyard became their little world, picking blueberries and tomatoes, riding scooters and tricycles, and creating the kind of childhood memories you never forget.

Our home has always been a place of celebration. From birthday parties to Thanksgiving dinners, it has been filled with love, joy, and the kind of laughter that lingers long after the moment has passed. One of our most cherished traditions was Mother's Day, planting our vegetable garden together, year after year.

It's the little, everyday moments we'll miss the most, watching our parents sip chai in the evenings, sharing stories, and simply being together. We've also been incredibly fortunate to have wonderful neighbors who became close friends, often sharing fresh produce from our garden and creating a true sense of community.

Life here extends beyond the home in the best way. Halloween on Saroni Drive is truly magical, filled with energy and neighborhood spirit. Weekends meant strolling through the farmers market in Montclair Village, while weekdays offered quick escapes, whether it was a refreshing walk between meetings or a peaceful hike along the nearby Huckleberry and Redwood trails. With ballet and soccer just minutes away, everything we needed for our family was right here.

This home has been the backdrop of some of the most meaningful moments of our lives. It has been a place of growth, love, and deep connection. We hope when you walk through these doors, you feel it too, and create your own beautiful story here.

~ Sellers of 6555 Saroni Drive